

Measure and Order Angles

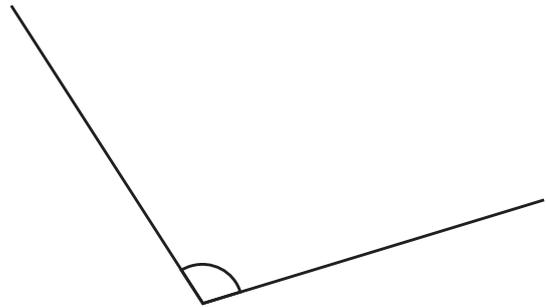

I can measure and compare angles using degrees. (ACMMG112)

Use a protractor to measure each angle.

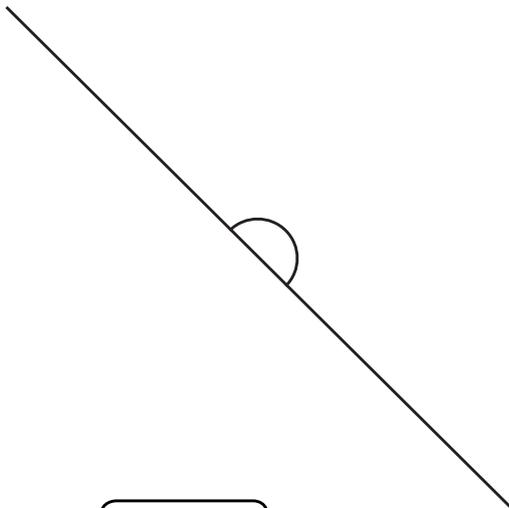

a. °

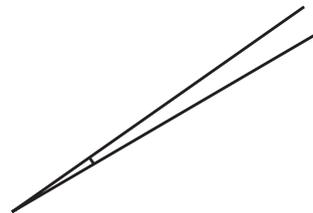

b. °

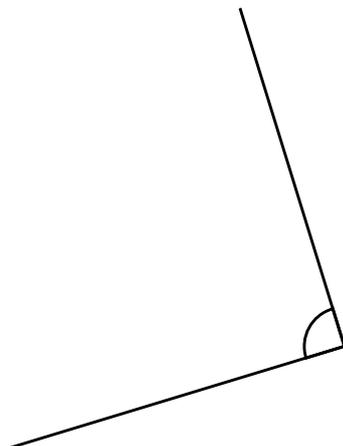

c. °

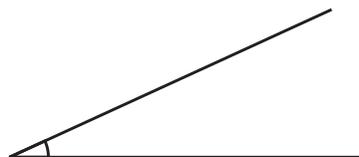

d. °

e. °

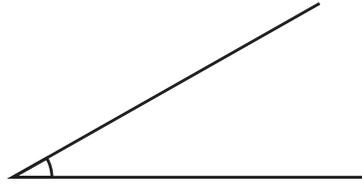

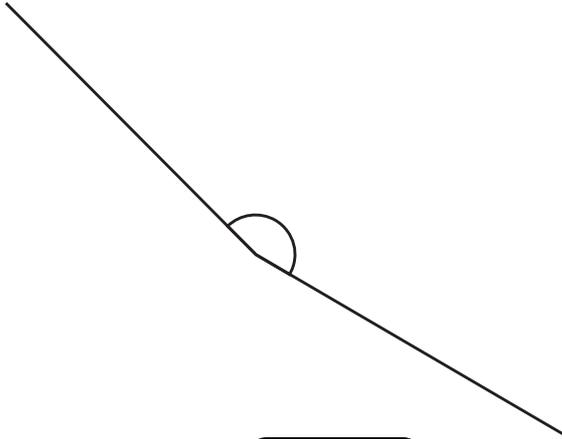

f. °

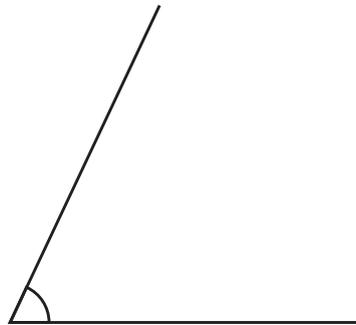

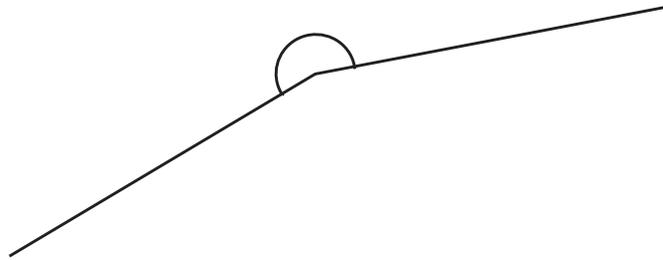

g. °

h. °

i. °

j. °

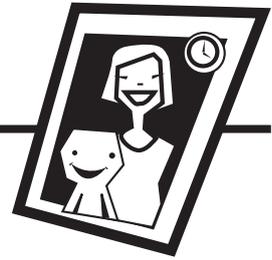

Sort the angles into the table by type.

Acute Angles	Right Angles	Obtuse Angles	Straight Angle	Reflex Angle

Sequencing

Practice page

Use similar strategies to those on page 29 to practise sequencing.
(Clues are given to help you.)

1. Which event took place last?

- (a) Laurie cackled.
- (b) Sam glanced over her shoulder.
- (c) Sam felt her knees shaking.
- (d) Laurie told Sam opening the door was part of the dare.

The best answer is .

2. Which of these events happened between Sam cringing and Laurie grabbing the torch?

- (a) Laurie tugged at Sam's shirt.
- (b) Laurie pushed open the front door.
- (c) Sam reached into her pocket.
- (d) Sam felt that what she and Laurie were doing was madness.

The best answer is .

3. What happened straight after Laurie told Sam they should wait for their eyes to adjust to the light?

4. Put these events in order by using the numbers 1 to 5.

• Sam felt like her nose was full of stale dust.

• Laurie said 'This is the one'.

• Sam followed Laurie up the stairs.

• Sam walked into the house.

• Sam said 'It's okay'.

Think!

You may like to scan the text from the end to find out which of these events took place last.

Think!

Find the part of the text that describes Sam cringing and the part that describes Laurie grabbing the torch, then read what happened in between to work out the answer.

Think!

Find this event in the text and read the sentence immediately after it.

Think!

You will need to find all of these events in the text to work out the order in which they happened.

1. Plan a narrative about a mishap involving someone else's property.
